Alicia Logan is Ice Miller's Director of Litigation Support and Practice Technology, where she oversees all aspects of the electronic discovery process and litigation practice support staff. She is also responsible for establishing and implementing technology standards, policies, and procedures to grow and enhance the firm's litigation practice.

Alicia works to ensure our team members are successfully using firm technology to improve legal outcomes, while driving adoption of services and technology across litigation case teams and clients. She does this by providing our legal teams with automated solutions in various formats to efficiently manage information associated with representing clients throughout the matter lifecycle.

Prior to joining Ice Miller, Alicia was part of the litigation practice for a Mid-Atlantic-based law firm for more than a decade.
