

James N. Bulow

Associate

james.bulow@icemiller.com

317 236 2319

James is a litigator with an emphasis on complex construction disputes. He has helped clients across the country with risk management and disputes involving breach of contract, construction defect and delay, negligence, and products liability claims in residential, multi-family, heavy industrial, and transportation facets of the construction industry. James has represented owners, developers, designers, and contractors. He has experience navigating through the entire dispute process, from risk assessment and management to avoid disputes, to negotiations, mediations, arbitrations, and cases heard in court. He remembers the old business adage of high speed, high quality, and low cost — choose two. James knows that most disputes occur when someone promised all three.

James's prior professional experience includes over ten years in structural engineering and design, including being a Professional Engineer registered in Indiana and previously having LEED Accredited Professional Building Design + Construction status. He helped design dozens of buildings constructed using a wide variety of materials and methods for numerous clients and stakeholders. Coupled with his legal knowledge, this real, boots on the ground industry experience gives James the ability to understand the technical complexities of your case while crafting concise, understandable arguments that clients — and judges — appreciate.

James is a patent attorney who also serves clients with general real estate, commercial, and complex business matters.

Education

- Purdue University (B.S., 2007)
 - Civil Engineering
- Butler University (M.B.A, 2011)
- Indiana University Robert H. McKinney School of Law (J.D., 2020)

Admissions

- Indiana
- United States District Court - Northern District of Indiana

Services & Industries

- Litigation
- Construction

- United States District Court - Southern District of Indiana
- United States Patent and Trademark Office

Community Involvement

- President, Past-Treasurer, Quality of Life Committee Co-Chair, Bates Hendricks Neighborhood Association
- Indiana Structural Engineers Association Code Committee

Thought Leadership

January 11, 2023

Construction Litigation in Indiana: 2022 Year in Review