JD French is an associate in Ice Miller's Litigation Group. JD is a civil litigator focused on complex commercial disputes. He is dedicated to providing strategic and effective representation for clients navigating the intricacies of the legal landscape.

JD is adept at managing high-stakes disputes and navigating clients' eDiscovery and evidentiary obligations, ensuring that clients' interests are safeguarded throughout the litigation process. He also has experience helping clients navigate government subpoenas and FOIA requests.

JD has handled cases involving insurance coverage, administrative law, property tax, commercial and contract disputes, fraud, and the False Claims Act, among others. Prior to joining Ice Miller, he represented hospitals, health care systems, physicians, and laboratories in civil litigation related to contracts, medical staff, licensing, premises liability, among others.

JD graduated summa cum laude from the Indiana University Maurer School of Law, where he was a Robel Scholar, executive editor of the Indiana Law Journal, and a volunteer for the Protective Order Project.

JD is admitted to practice law in the state of Indiana.
