Laurie Mittenthal serves as practice group director for Ice Miller's Litigation Practice Group. She is responsible for overseeing all aspects of strategic planning, administration and management of the Group, including revenue growth, client service and talent development. In her role, Laurie serves as chief business advisor to the practice and practice group leaders, focusing on developing innovative approaches to business operations and development, all driven by the voice of the client.

Laurie has held leadership positions in marketing and business development in professional services organizations for 20 years. Prior to joining Ice Miller, she oversaw the operations, marketing and business development activities of the IP and Regulatory practices of an international law firm, and also led the development and implementation of client experience initiatives firmwide.

Laurie is a past president of the Capital Chapter (now part of the Mid-Atlantic Region) of the Legal Marketing Association.
