Meghan Copeland is an associate in Ice Miller's Business Group, where her practice focuses on estate planning, business succession planning, and estate and trust administration.

Prior to a career in law, Meghan was a family case manager with the Marion County Department of Child Services where she worked to facilitate permanent living arrangements for children. It was through this work, where she was engaged with the innerworkings of the legal system, that she became interested in a legal career.

Meghan earned her juris doctor and a graduate certificate in Corporate and Commercial Law from the Indiana University Robert H. McKinney School of Law. While attending law school, Meghan served as a Dean's Tutorial Society Fellow where she assisted first-year law students with legal research and writing. In her second year there, Meghan completed a legal externship with an Indiana-based global power technology company, gaining experience in international business transactions and information privacy law.
