Taryn Stone is a partner and chair of the firm's Health Care Group, concentrating her practice on various aspects of health law. Taryn represents various providers and suppliers of health care services including hospitals, physicians, and medical device manufacturers on transactional and regulatory issues.

Her practice includes counseling clients on matters involving Medicare conditions of participation, Medicare and Medicaid billing and reimbursement issues, the Stark and Anti-Kickback laws and similar state laws, the False Claims Act, HIPAA and other state privacy and security laws, and state licensure laws and regulations. She is also a member of the Firm's Internet of Things (IoT) Group.

Taryn has represented many health care providers on a wide variety of matters including structuring complex health care arrangements under the Stark and Anti-Kickback laws, the formation, operation and sale of physician group practices, negotiating contracts, mergers and acquisitions, employment matters and other business arrangements between providers, manufacturers and other entities.

Previously, Taryn served as in-house counsel for a large, publicly traded home health and hospice company. Taryn also worked as a health care consultant for a national consulting firm helping clients develop and implement co-management arrangements.

Taryn graduated from Washington University in St. Louis in 2002 with a Bachelor of Arts. While at Wash U, she was captain of the Washington University Women's Swimming & Diving team. She received her juris doctor, magna cum laude, from Indiana University School of Law-Indianapolis in 2005. While in law school, she was an articles editor for the Indiana Law Review, a volunteer in the school's pro bono program, a member of the Health Law Society, and a member of the Dean's Tutorial Society.

Taryn is admitted to practice law in the states of Indiana and North Carolina.

Success Stories

Arjo

Arjo is a global, market-leading supplier of medical devices, services and solutions that help to improve quality of life for people with reduced mobility and age-related health challenges. Arjo creates value by improving clinical outcomes for patients and enabling a better work environment for health care professionals.

While Arjo focuses on improving the health and well-being of others, Ice Miller serves as Arjo's outside counsel in the U.S. and Canada to make sure the company is legally healthy as well.

Arjo's main customers are private and public acute and long-term health care institutions. Arjo endeavors to deliver solutions to improve clinical results and higher financial value by developing programs with considerations toward future demographic trends and stricter regulatory requirements. Its offering includes preventative solutions for caregiver injuries, patient injuries, falls, venous thromboembolism, pressure ulcers and infections. With these solutions in mind, Arjo provides medical equipment including medical beds, patient transfer solutions, hygiene systems, vascular therapy products, disinfection products, diagnostics products and therapeutic support systems.

With U.S. headquarters in Addison, Illinois and primary headquarters in Malmö, Sweden, Arjo serves customers in more than 100 countries and has more than 6,200 employees worldwide.

Ice Miller currently serves as Arjo, Inc.'s primary U.S. outside legal counsel. When Ice Miller began the client relationship with Arjo, one of our corporate attorneys assisted Arjo on-site, learning the business and being available to support the in-house attorneys. Since that time, several Ice Miller attorneys have provided Arjo with legal counsel in a multitude of areas including labor and employment, data privacy and security, commercial transactions and corporate and regulatory issues.

Through our relationship, Ice Miller has learned Arjo's industry and assists the company with legal matters across the U.S. and Canada. We have maintained a diverse legal team to assist Arjo, which reflects on the diversity of Arjo's own personnel. Arjo has various point people at Ice Miller in different practice areas who route work to other attorneys and practice areas as necessary. We also work cooperatively and effectively with Arjo's other outside counsel and advisors.
